STORM OVER HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION BREAKS WITH REPORT

DEPUTY KILLED IN THE PRESENCE OF WIFE AND KIDDIES

Shot Down By Negro Whom He Sought To Arrest SHOT IS FIRED OVER HIS EYES
Marvin Williams Of Midland City Pays With His Life

(Associated Press)
OZARK, Ala., July 19—In the presence of his wife and three small children who had accompanied him on a Sunday afternoon automobile ride, Deputy Sheriff Marvin Williams, of Midland City, was shot and killed instantly by one of five negroes whom he was attempting to place under arrest. Joe Smith, of Dothan, is said to be the negro who fired the fatal shot. Sheriff A. T. White, of Dale county, who was summoned from Ozark to the scene of the tragedy, took up the trail of the negro who fired the shot, assisted by a squad of deputies, tracked the slayer for about half a mile when all further trace of him was lost. Searching for the fugitive was still being pursued today with unrelenting vigor, according to Sheriff White.

According to accounts of the murder reaching Ozark, Deputy Sheriff Williams, with his wife and three small children, were riding in their automobile on the highway between Midland City and Newton when they passed an automobile with five negro men in it. The deputy sheriff, it is said, observed that the negroes appeared to be under the influence of liquor and shouted to them to stop. His order going unheeded, he turned his car and followed them.

At a point about two miles beyond Midland City he overtook the car containing the negroes and drove in front of it, whereupon the negroes stopped. Deputy Williams it is stated, then got out of his automobile and was approaching the other car when one of the negroes whipped out a revolver and fired. The bullet struck Williams squarely between the eyes and he fell to the ground before the horrified gaze of his wife and little ones. Death was instantaneous, it was stated.

BURNING BOX CAR CAUSE OF ALARM

Cotton Is Threatened But Most Of It Is Saved

A burning box car in the Southern railway yard at 12:30 o'clock this morning called out both the Albany and Decatur fire departments.

The car contained 20 bales of cotton, most of which was rushed to a place of safety, but the main body of the freight car was destroyed. The cause of the blaze is not known.

People in the Moulton section attended and, for a time, it was feared the blaze might spread and become costly. Good work by the members of the two fire departments, however, kept down the flames and confined the fire to the one car.

Black To Speak at Shop Gates

Hugo Black, candidate for the United States senate, will speak at the Louisville and Nashville shop gates at noon Wednesday, it was announced by friends here today. Several other addresses in North Alabama communities may be delivered by Mr. Black during the next few days.

KIWANIS RANKS ARE SWELLING WITH INTER-CITY MEET NEAR

Moss, Ramsey And Heinz To Speak To Gathering

ALL SECTIONS TO BE REPRESENTED

Kiwanis International Leaders To Come Here

Kiwanis ranks for the Inter-City meeting, scheduled for Thursday, July 22, are swelling with the passing days. Word from the middle section of the state, that nearly fifty will be in attendance at the Thursday meeting, has greatly encouraged local Kiwanians who now believe that the list of visitors here on the scheduled date will be well in advance of 200.

Every city in the Northern section is preparing to send a delegation to the gathering, as well as other sections in the middle and southern parts of the state. Huntsville, the Tri-Cities and Cullman will have particularly strong delegations here.

The tentative program for the day, as announced by the local club will prove exceedingly interesting to Kiwanians with John H. Moss, immediate past president, who comes here from Milwaukee, Henry C. Heinz, international treasurer, sent here from Atlanta and Erskine Ramsey, Alabama district governor who will come here from Birmingham.

With the ranks growing daily, local Kiwanians today launched out on the arrangement of final details, trying to make the meeting measure far ahead of the similar occasion here last year when more than 200 were in attendance.

A golf tourney will interest various representatives from the clubs, beginning at nine o'clock in the morning at the Valley Country club. Four representatives of each club will be entered.

State To Build Two More Miles

A long distance telephone message to The Daily this afternoon from Mayor Meggs of Courtland, stated he was in receipt of a letter from John A. Rogers, chairman of the state highway commission, stating that bids will be advertised for at once for construction of two miles of roadway from Fish Pond to the Morgan County line. This will complete the new highway through Lawrence County.

The completion of the new project will provide a good road from the Morgan County line to Sheffield, but will leave a stretch of between three and five miles, just inside the Morgan County boundaries still very rough and at times almost impassable.

Hope has been expressed that Morgan County will repair this piece of road, pending construction of a permanent thoroughfare.

HENDRIX IS BACKING THE PREVENTION

July 17, 1926.

To the Citizens of Decatur: I heartily endorse the observance of FIRE PREVENTION WEEK by our people giving attention to the cleaning and repairing of their chimneys and flues. Our records show that the majority of calls made to the fire department may be traced to burning soot falling on shingle roofs; and in addition, there are some serious cases where defective flues have been the cause. Aside from the matter of preventing fires, the cleaning of flues and chimneys will enable you to get better service from your heating plants, save fuel, and have cleaner premises. It is a movement in which all citizens should participate.

PLAN TO EXTEND RAIL LINE AIRED

Two Governors To Be Present at Hearing In Columbus

(Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Miss., July 19.—Proposals of the St. Louis, San Francisco railroad for permission to extend its line from Aberdeen, Miss., to Kimbrough, Ala., a distance of 153 miles to give the Frisco system a connecting link between its main line and the recently acquired Muscle Shoals, Birmingham and Pensacola railroad, were presented formally at a hearing conducted here today before H. C. Davis, examiner for the interstate commerce commission.

Extension of the road from Aberdeen to Kimbrough is desired to give the Frisco a direct connection between its main system and the Muscle Shoals route, with Pensacola on the gulf as the southern terminus.

Governors of two states, Whitfield, of Mississippi, and Brandon, of Alabama with delegations from a score of cities and towns along the proposed route, and high officials of the Frisco and other railroads attended the hearing.

Announcement was made in advance of today's hearing that permission already had been given by the Mississippi railroad commission for the extension and right-of-way had been secured for practically the entire distance. If authority is given by the interstate commerce commission, it was stated, construction would begin by October of this year.

McMillian Dies While On Visit

Funeral services were held this morning at ten o'clock from the residence, 1505 5th avenue, South, for James F. McMillian, aged 64 years, who died Saturday night at eleven o'clock from what is believed an attack of acute indigestion. Mr. McMillian was on a visit to his daughter's home in Lawrence county. After a hearty supper, it is believed Mr. McMillian suffered an attack of acute indigestion. He died before medical aid could be rendered.

Rev. Collier officiated in the sad ceremonies this morning, interment following at Roselawn cemetery, Priest directing.

The deceased is survived by his wife, two sons and three daughters.

PATTERSON ENTERS FIRE PREVENTION NORTHERN SECTION WEEK OBSERVANCE ON THREE DAY TOUR URGED BY OFFICERS

Morgan Candidate Is Well Pleased With Breed Survey

SAYS PLATFORM HAS BEEN AIDED

Talks Of Entrance Of "Post" For Carmichael

Andrew G. Patterson will start his second invasion of North Alabama counties this week, speaking in Limestone on Wednesday, Madison on Thursday and in Jackson county on Friday.

Mr. Patterson will arrive in Albany-Decatur on Wednesday morning aboard the Pan-American and a number of his Morgan executive committee will join him for the tour of the other counties in this section.

The Morgan candidate was in Birmingham today watching the outcome of the Alabama Automotive Association meeting, characterized as dynamite to be exploded in certain political camps in the gubernatorial race.

Speaks Of Roads
"The Alabama Automotive Association report links in directly with the principles I have mentioned in my platform," Mr. Patterson declared, "I have advocated $41,000,000 over a period of four years, the Breed report asks for $80,000,000 in eight years. The Breed report likewise recommends that an engineer be appointed at the head of highways and urges a reorganization of the highway system. Further, the report recommends a bond issue in case there is a desire on the part of the people, tying in with the platform I have fought the race fight on since the beginning of the campaign."

Mr. Patterson has several speaking engagements in Limestone county, speaks at Monrovia school, Madison county on July 22 and at the Elks Theatre on Thursday night in Huntsville. Friday will find him in Jackson county assailing the strongholds of other candidates.

Newspaper Entrance
Talking of the entrance of the Birmingham Post in the Carmichael interests, Mr. Patterson was of the opinion that the move has "broken more bones than it has mended." He declared that the entrance of the third big Alabama daily allows Carmichael to be accused of the same charge with

Week Of July 19-26 Acclaimed By Officials

HEARTY BACKING LENDED TO MOVE

Defective Flues Are Cause For Greater Fire Loss

With the knowledge that 87 per cent of fire loss is due to defective flues, officials of Albany-Decatur today announced "Fire Prevention week," July 19-26. Members of the two fire departments will accompany inspectors of the "Safety First Association" in making thorough canvass of the cities and asking people to follow the recommendation of the inspector.

It is probable that not a single project launched here has received a more hearty endorsement than the present plan for preventing fire losses. City officials, organizations and insurance firms have lent their full support to the preventative measure and will aid during the week in bringing the message of care and prevention to local homes.

The importance of the observance is seen in the statement that 87 per cent of fire losses is caused through defective flues. This seemingly trivial matter, fire officials point out, is usually not thought of by home owners or renters until they are reminded of it by fire alarms turned in for their own residences.

The following statements were issued today by the fire chiefs of the cities.

Decatur, Ala., July 15, 1926

To the Citizens of Decatur:
During "Fire Prevention Week," and as long as it is necessary, an inspector of the "Safety First Association" will call on you for the purpose of inspecting your home, especially, your chimneys and flues which, I know from personal experience, needs the attention of this organization.

I, L. H. Kilgore, as Chief of the Decatur Fire Department, heartily endorse these inspections and respectfully ask that these gentlemen be extended this privilege and full co-operation as their work, fully outlined, to me, will mean less fires and a great saving of property

Two interesting arrivals from Europe, Helen Wills, splendid type of the California girl, who made European tennis players respect America, and General Umberto Nobile, able Italian who planned the dirigible "Norge," superintended its building, and then, as pilot, took the big air-boat with Amundsen and his crew, over the North Pole.

OUR wish concerning General Nobile is that he stay and work in this country, which would be honored by his presence. For Miss Wills we wish a husband worthy of her, if such a creature could possibly be found, a big family of children, including one genius that would do for American statesmanship what she has done for American tennis.

BIDGOOD OPPOSES $75,000,000 ISSUE AS "UNSALEABLE"

Financial Expert Of Opinion Issue Not Economical

ASSESSMENTS ARE TRACED

Uses Figures To Show Total Proposed Much Too High

(Associated Press)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 19—Opposition to the proposed $75,000,000 bond issue for good roads as "bringing the ratio of the state's debt to its assessed valuation up to 11.3 or twice as high as the debt ratio of any other state in the union," and as an issue that would be utterly unsalable" was voiced in the report of Lee Bidgood for the Alabama Automotive Trades Association, released today.

Mr. Bidgood, who is dean of the school of commerce and business administration of the University of Alabama, and a member of the American Economics Association, has been making a survey of roads conditions in the state at the instance of the Automotive Association. His report was released simultaneously with that of H. Eltinge Breed, engineer.

Mr. Bidgood declared that "even assuming a faster rate of gain of 10 per cent a year, the fastest that can at all reasonably be expected it will require 12 years to make safe an issue of $75,000,000 of bonds."

"It is one thing to propose gigantic bond issues and it is another, and quite a different thing to sell them," Mr. Bidgood declared. "It is easy to get up and advocate enormous issues of bonds, without reference to the financial facts which must be kept in mind as a guide if the bonds are to be sold, but when the day comes to put those bonds on the market, it will be found that all the buyers of bonds have studied carefully the facts and figures, such as are considered in this report, and will not bid on the issue unless it is in accordance with the rules of sound finance."

"One of those rules alone, that of the ratio of the state debt to assessed valuation, makes a big bond issue of the $75,000,000 type absolutely impossible."

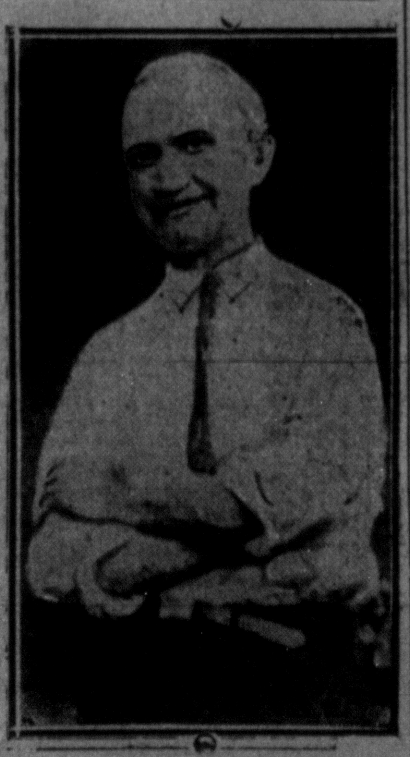

"I know that the advocates of this very large issue say they do not expect to sell it all at one time. They say there will be time for the property assessments in Alabama to rise. Very true, but let us again be guided by facts. There has been a steady rise of assessed value in Alabama since 1882, but it has taken 15 years for values to double. Our values in 1895 were half as large as in 1910 and our values in 1910 were half as large as in 1925. To make a $75,000,000 bond issue sound and salable that is to bring it within the five per cent limit, will require an increase of 126 per cent in property assessments. At the rate of gain, which has been rather consistently shown for the past 30 years, it will take until 1945 to make this gain in property values."

"Even assuming a faster rate of gain of 10 per cent a year, the fastest that at all can reasonably be expected, it will require 12 years to make safe an issue of $75,000,000 of bonds."

He continued: "The budget of expenses proposed for the next four years is shown in detail in tables a and b of Breed's report. The construction plan of our consulting engineer, Mr. Breed, calls for a total expenditure for construction 72

'BUILDER' POINTS TO ALMON VICTORY

McEachin Paper Says Compromise Is Not Now Expected

The Huntsville Community Builder, twice a week publication which has been advocating the candidacy of John E. McEachin as circuit solicitor of the Eighth judicial circuit, Sunday predicted the re-election in "Dave Almon is re-elected without even counting the votes."

The paper made this prediction following a failure to affect a compromise between John R. Sample and John E. McEachin in the race.

The statement follows: "It looks like what is to be will be, regardless. Knowing that they are both drawing from the same strength, the writer has made earnest and repeated efforts to effect a compromise between Sample and McEachin in the solicitor's race, but it appears that nothing can be accomplished. It would be an awful pill to swallow, but, mark our prediction, if the three candidates remain in the solicitor's race, Dave Almon is re-elected without even counting the votes."

Five Homes Are Being Constructed

Five bungalows, five room frame type, are now under construction on Fourth avenue and Second street, west, the fastest growing section in these cities. It is estimated that between 20 and 30 homes have been built in the west section of the cities within the last six months to a year period. Two of the bungalows now being built are owned by J. M. Cottrell, while Charles Rountree is building the other three.

'REORGANIZATION' HIGHWAY UNIT IS BREED PROPOSAL

Consulting Engineer Has Word of Praise For Present Board

CUT EXPENSE HIS WARNING

Avoid Mistakes Made In Past, He Tells Auto Dealers

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 19—To finance a complete system of highways in Alabama, $80,000,000, will be required in the opinion of H. Eltinge Breed, consulting engineer of New York, who has made an exhaustive survey of the state's system for the Alabama Automotive Trades Association.

Mr. Breed would spend this money under direction of a state highway engineer, aided by a high class assistant, three deputy engineers and an advisory commission of three members. He recommended that the engineer be named by the governor and paid $12,000 yearly. It was suggested that he should be a man of broad capacity and wide experience, his eligibility to full membership in the American society of civil engineers being a minimum qualification. The state engineer would name his assistant whose qualifications must rank with that of the superior official. The advisory commission would be appointed for terms of four years by the governor and its members would serve on part time basis at a salary of $1,200 a year and expenses while on state highway work. One member would be a business man, on a banker and one would be chosen from one of Alabama's state schools. The functions of the commission would be to advise with the highway engineer in matters of policy and to protect the department as far as possible from hindrance by political influence. The advisory board is not to interfere with the engineer in matters of control, which is vested absolutely in that official.

The term of office of the highway engineer would be six years. The senate must concur in the governor's selection. Mr. Breed suggests that as far as possible the present force in the department below the administrative group be kept intact.

In the proposed organization, it was Mr. Breed's idea to "minimize the intrusion of politics into road work."

The assistant engineer would receive a salary of $8,000. He would assist the engineer in all matters and act for that official in his absence. Three deputy engineers, named by the highway engineer, would be paid $7,000 yearly each and the work would be divided thus among these technical experts: deputy in charge of construction, deputy in charge of maintenance and deputy in charge of county work.

In explanation of his recommendations regarding finances, Mr. Breed suggests that the $80,000,000 necessary for a complete system be spent as follows: For through routes, $38,000,000; for connecting routes, $26,000,000 and for bridges $14,500,000. He continues: "Of this total amount $58,000,000; if desired, could be properly provided from bond issues; $22,000,000, however, should be provided from current revenue because it will be used for non-permanent surfacing."

In matters of finance he suggests the state should avoid large bond issues over long periods. On

Automobile Dealers Hear Result Road Survey

'Reorganization' Highway Unit Is Breed Proposal

this point he said:

"In considering values, it must be remembered that under the bond issue, every dollar that goes into roads has a carrying charge of forty cents; it cost $1.40 to get a dollar's worth of road. A large bond issue over a long period is a costly proposition, as is shown by the experience of New York state which, at the end of fifty years will have paid $203,905,344, for the $100,000,000 it originally borrowed to build highways. (Computed by the Deputy Comptroller of New York State.)"

Continuing his suggestion as to finance Mr. Breed suggests:

"Provide for retirement of bonds within the probable life of the pavement that they are to build."

"Use Federal aid money up to the limit before paying interest on bond funds."

"Consider state routes as a whole before making apportionments among the counties."

"Above all, do not handicap the efficiency of the state highway department by making promises of definite funds to specific counties in ignorance or heedlessness of general needs."

"Such funds as are needed for immediate work in excess of current revenues should be provided for through the issuance as needed of short term bonds or warrants."

On the question of legislation these recommendations are set forth:

"Put measures for rigid enforcement in the law against overloading."

"Levy a uniform tax of three cents a gallon on gasoline to be collected by the state."

"Have it specifically understood that the 20 per cent of the motor vehicle license tax which reverts to cities, towns, or counties, shall be used by them only for highway purposes."

"Legalize the payment of vouchers without the governor's signature."

"To preserve the scenic beauty and the safety of Alabama's roads rigid laws should prohibit entirely the erection of bill boards or use of advertising material along state and county highways."

In spite of obstacles hitherto encountered the state already has 2,266 miles of improved roads built or under way, Mr. Breed says. He then observes:

"As preface to my conclusions and recommendations let me urge that they in no sense annul or undo the present highway commission or organization. Much of the work that they have accomplished has been highly creditable. The spirit of the organization is splendid, its capacity great. In considering the survey two facts must be kept in mind. First, that it is much easier to come in at a given moment and see where mistakes have been made in work done over a period of years, than it is to foresee and prevent those mistakes in the early stages of a tremendous undertaking. Every state highway department has made blunders; everywhere money has been wasted in road building. Our aim in these recommendations is to minimize future blunders and waste. Second, it appears from the most searching observations I could make that the highway commission has in general done the best it could in view of its inexperience with the magnitude of the problem before it; of the lack of definite data such as traffic counts and total cost and serviceability of different types under the conditions in Alabama; and, worst of all from an engineering standpoint, in view of the legal compulsion upon it to expend twenty of the twenty-five million bond issue equally among all the counties of the state regardless of need."

The report deals exhaustively in technical detail with grades, alignment, material, etc. On the question of engineering economies he says:

"Considerable savings could be effected through slight changes in grade and alignment. In many of the Alabama projects there is a boldness of line and grade that is magnificent, but disproportionately costly. Such design would be a credit to the type of construction necessary in Metropolitan areas of over a million in population, but in a state where urgent need is the immediate construction of more miles of improved road, it is of more than doubtful value to add to the cost of building any road thousands of dollars not actually needed there, that are so desperately needed somewhere else. This is, of course, strictly a point of engineering economies."

neering economies." Mr. Breed then explains: "Errors in grading and alignment similar to these in Alabama are to be found in the early work of many highway departments throughout the country, especially prior to 1920."

A list of roads totalling 506 miles and embracing the various types already constructed is presented in the report to determine the dollar and cents values that the people of Alabama have gotten in roads for the money they have expended. The report sets out the statement that "those highways which were built at a total cost of $18,761,228.93, are today valued at $15,264,300 after approximately $975,000 has been spent in them for maintenance. In the valuation, obsolescence and ordinary depreciation were omitted, the maintenance and repair items being considered an offset to them. In other words, of the bond issue money, the roads have already lost in value $3,500,000."

"There are some types of surfacing in this list" the report adds, "which will not outlive half the life of the bonds with which they were built. The only permanent thing about them is the grading and drainage. The bridges should be considered as permanent engineering structures."

Of the types of construction used to illustrate the dollar and cents value of roads the state investment in gravel and chert roads showed the greatest loss and cement concrete the least. In the former, the state's investment was $10,496,576.97, with an estimated value today of only $7,450,000, and on the cement concrete an investment of $1,347,402.14 has a value today of $1,320,000.

The report urges the use of federal aid up to the limit before paying interest on bond funds.

Through routes are recommended to embrace a total mileage of 1,064 miles of hard surface paving and 291 miles of grading.

The location of through routes embraces Birmingham-Montgomery, Birmingham-Tuscaloosa, Birmingham-Gadsden, Birmingham-Athens, Mobile-Montgomery, Birmingham-Florence to the Tennessee line, Livingston-Montgomery-Girard, Montgomery-Dothan to Florida line, Birmingham-Anniston, Anniston-Georgia line, Mobile-Demopolis, Thomasville-Clanton, to Mississippi, degra, Sylacauga, Sylacauga-Columbus, Ga. and Thomasville-Bessemer.

The connecting routes recommended are as follows: Demopolis-Tuscaloosa, Tuscaloosa-Phil Campbell, Brewton-Dothan to Georgia line, Dothan-Anniston, Montgomery-Healin, Tusculum-Collinsville, Gadsden-Center-Rome, Ga., Birmingham-Boaz, Jasper-Bankston to Mississippi line, Jasper-Guin to Mississippi, Culman-Guntersville, Linden-Troy, Andalusia-Monroeville, Camden-Bay Minette, Russellville-Decatur, Mobile-Coalspa, Mobile-Hattiesburg, Miss., Centerville-Talladega, Scottsboro-Fort Payne, Montgomery-Union Springs, Girard, Eufula-Lanette-Dadeville and the remainder estimated at 300 miles.

On this secondary group a total of 1,290 miles is recommended for grading as a permanent feature, and graveling to the extent of 1,746 miles, surface treated, and gravel roads now built embracing 507 miles to be shaped up and surface treated, these two groups classed as non-permanent.

"The existing state highway system of 4,000 miles" the report continues, "should be completed with the priority and types shown. To this we have added a small mileage for purposes of priority, the greatest need for immediate improvement has been considered on the basis of population, the assessed valuation of property, of the number of registration of vehicles, of gasoline used, of the amount of traffic and its potential development. In considering the problem we aimed to complete and coordinate these sections of the through routes that would quickest provide the current revenues upon which is predicated the improvement of part of the connecting routes. In doing the work 75 per cent of the year's allocation should be spent upon the through routes until they are completed; the remainder upon the connecting routes, providing however, that no one division, section or county of the state shall be over-loaded with work."

"The types considered for improvement are only the cement concrete pavement for the durable type on through routes, and the gravel road, surface treated, with tar or asphaltic oil, for the connecting routes and for lightly traveled section of the through route."

The cement concrete pavement is chosen because of all the durable types it gives under the conditions in Alabama the most for the dollar expended. Certain conditions might make it advisable to substitute for it an asphaltic concrete pavement on a concrete base if the difference in cost warrants the change, it being remembered always that country roads require proportionately greater edge strength. There is exception from these recommendations those sections of railroad grades taken over by the state on which there is considerable slag ballast which could be used as a foundation for an asphaltic concrete surface.

"The gravel road, surface treated is chosen as the most economical and most satisfactory of the non-permanent types."

Eleven Additions Brought to Church

The revival series, which has been in progress in Falkville, under the leadership of Rev. Noble R. Edwards, came to a close last night when an audience, which taxed the capacity of the church, heard an interesting discourse on "God Speaks." G. E. McCulloch had charge of the musical program.

During the revival eleven additions were brought into the church membership.

Many Endorsing Paving Proposal

The news article, published in The Daily Saturday, regarding the possibility of an extensive paving program in East Albany, today called forth many expressions of endorsement of the proposals.

It was declared there is much room for expansion of the city in the eastern section and belief was expressed by a number of citizens that the paving of the several beautiful streets in that area would do much toward the building up of another fine residential section here.

TRY TO COMPLETE ROAD BY JAN. 1ST

Trade Artery Will Result When Road Is Finished

All efforts are being put forward to complete the Moulton-Decatur highway by January 1, it was stated today. The contract date was not given, but crews on the nine mile stretch are being pushed from morning until night in an effort to open the highway by January 1.

The opinion of one well known business man today, regarding the future of the road, was seen in his expression that "the opening of the road will be of as much value as another railroad for these cities."

"People in the Moulton section and in the Albany-Decatur section are greatly interested in the progress that is being made and hopes are expressed every day that the contractors will complete the highway ahead of schedule."

BAPTIST TO MEET MASONIC BUILDING

At Least Seven Bids Expected On New Edifice

The building committee of Central Baptist church, J. H. Crow, chairman, will meet Tuesday afternoon at Masonic building, Albany to receive bids for the construction of the handsome new Baptist church.

Mr. Crow stated today that as soon after noon as possible the members of the building committee will gather at Masonic temple to open bids. It is expected that at least seven bids will be made for the construction work, seven sets of plans having been sent to contractors.

It is not estimated when the structure will be completed, providing the bids offered Tuesday are accepted. The present church building will be razed and replaced by the handsome structure.

Bidgood Opposes $75,000,000 Issue As "Unsalable"

per cent will be permanent. This permanent construction will require $33,120,000, which is to be financed by federal aid and bonds. The state now receives $1,541,870 annually of federal aid. This amount is fixed and already appropriated for the next three years and the apportionment will not be changed until after the census of 1930. That gives us for the four years $6,167,480 of federal aid monies. It leaves $26,960,000 to be raised by a bond issue."

Mr. Bidgood declared the proposal to take away the two cent gasoline tax from the counties will arouse objections. These objections, he admits, however, are based on political expediency, rather than sound economic and governmental policy.

"No other state divides all of its gasoline tax among its counties," he says. "All experts from other states comment unfavorably on our present system. Our own experience and observation is equally unfavorable. The gasoline levy has not shown any particular results, nor can it be expected to show any. The system of dividing the highway money among the counties now is as out of date as the district township system was a couple of decades ago."

"Instead of spending road money from the gas tax under 47 divided administrations and overheard, he favors the concentration of this money in the hands of the state highway commission. This plan he declares fundamentally sound and constructive."

The impracticability of extending a budget over four years was given particular emphasis in the report of Mr. Bidgood.

"Four years is as long a time as it is possible to make a budget for," he declares. "The American Telephone and Telegraph company and its associated companies of the Bell system are usually credited as being farsighted as any private business in the world and with making plans farther ahead than most corporations. Yet their plans are made for only five years in the future and are revised annually."

"It is not practicable to lay out a budget for a highway system of Alabama for more than four years although the engineering work should be planned and has been planned through to the completion of the highway system, which will take eight years. There is nothing inconsistent in this. The Bell telephone system makes its engineering plan as much as 25 years ahead and its financial plan for five years only."

5 Cent Tax Too High

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 19.—The proposed increase of the gasoline tax of two cents a gallon to five cents a gallon is economically unfair, unwise and unreasonable, Dean Lee Bidgood head of the economic department of the University of Alabama, told the members of the Alabama Automotive Trades Association here today.

Automobile owners and dealers of Alabama now pay a total of $8,049,355.33 to state, local and national governments. This revenue he declared, is derived from placing on this class of property a higher tax than any class of property in history has paid to any government. The taxes on automobile owners and dealers total 30 per cent of the $15,000,000 taxes paid into the state treasury a year.

The state gets $4,659,786.56 of the taxes, the owners and dealers pay, the cities and counties receive $1,266,419.33 and the remainder goes to the federal government and officials who collect the taxes. The share of the federal government amounts to $2,113,149.33.

Dean Bidgood, cited figures showing only $3,445,959.95 of the immense sum of more than $8,000,000 taxes on the automobile owners and dealers in Alabama is spent on the highways of the state of Alabama. The federal government's federal aid money, spent on the state each year now is only $1,500,000 whereas the federal treasury gets more than $2,000,000 from auto taxes in the state.

In six counties of the state, each county levies a county tax of two cents a gallon on each gallon of gasoline. Should the proposed five cents tax be levied on each gallon of gasoline, the owners of automobiles in those counties would find themselves paying total taxes of seven cents a gallon on fuel, Dean Bidgood declares.

A reasonable increase on automobiles in the state can be made without disturbing economic conditions for use on highways but a proposal to raise the gasoline to five cents a gallon is not economically sound, he declared. shrinkage of revenue would result he said.

Dean Bidgood recommended increase of the assessed valuation other properties of the state. Owners of other classes of property pay only 47 per cent of the value of their property, whereas they are supposed to pay on at least 60 per cent. Taxation on 60 per cent of the values of other classes of property would yield the state additional revenue of $1,500,000 without an increase of the tax rate, Mr. Bidgood estimated.

No Hoppers On Hardwick Farm

"No hoppers have been seen on my farm," was the statement today of Charles G. Hardwick, Danville farmer. "Prospects were never better for a good cotton yield in the county," Mr. Hardwick continues. The planter stated that he is raising 150 acres in cotton, 150 acres in corn, along with considerable hay. He was of the opinion that crops in his section are well advanced.

Summer Services Will End Sunday

Summer services at the Princess theatre on Sunday evenings will be brought to a close next Sunday evening, when plans have been made for a glorious meeting. Rev. Noble R. Edwards, pastor of the Christian church, will preach his final sermon of the summer at the Princess on that occasion.

Last evening Rev. E. N. Anthony, of Hartselle, delivered a splendid sermon.

Protection

This Is FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Fire insurance rates are measured by the total amount of all insured property destroyed.

Your co-operation in fire prevention helps keep down the cost of protection.

Furthermore, the insuring of your property if uninsured will tend to reduce the burning ratio.

THIS very day fire's scorching terror may snatch away your dearest possessions. Is your insurance adequate enough to replace them?

Every home—its furnishings—garage and automobile—in fact ALL PROPERTY—should be adequately insured. The cost is small, and then, if fire sweeps down upon you, you are secure in the knowledge that you will be paid the money needed to rebuild and replace.

You can't get this protection after the fire has started. Fire won't wait for you. Don't you wait for it! If ALL your property subject to destruction by fire is not amply covered by insurance, see one of the agents listed below.

TODAY 12 Years Ago

July 19 falling on Sunday, there was no issue of The Daily of that date.

Large automobiles do not always indicate large incomes.

Be happy with your lot, is a popular doctrine, but suppose you are in jail?

The validity of marriages on board ship is being questioned, yet we have always heard of the sea of matrimony as a popular plunge resort.

The Tri-Cities Daily says "Give it to Carmichael." We are of the opinion that he is getting it about as fast as one man can expect to be defeated.

A month and a half left for vacationists, in other words about forty-five days left to spend all you saved last winter.

Don't think all the champions are in the headlines, there was once a man who talked a banker out of a loan without signing a lease on his life to get it.

Artists no longer need go to the sea to get the proper interpretation of the rise and fall of the tide. They make take a Ford and try some of our country roads.

"All the news every day" is a slogan most newspapers pride themselves in carrying. The Daily can live that slogan with the help of the people of these cities in phoning what they hear and allowing the news to be told to other people.

Red Grange quit the movies because movie stars did not kiss with the earnestness of the co-ed, he said it became monotonous. Just see what success does for a man's disposition. At least there was no use in Red's telling of the course he took at college.

A GOOD CREED

I believe in Albany-Decatur, Ala., as a future capital of wealth, good will, constructiveness. A city inhabited by progressives who will look after the best interests of their city and state first. A location unequaled by other cities in the state, a richly endowed section for agricultural endeavor, the junction point for the South's greatest railways, a city proud of a heritage for the development of the full worth of the wonderful stream surging across the northern boundary. Albany-Decatur is a good place to live, I am pleased to live here.

MORGAN MELON CROP NOT SO GOOD THIS YEAR

Reports from over Morgan county indicate that the melon crop this year will not be a substantial revenue producer as it has proved in years past. Too much rain is declared to have greatly hampered the work of Morgan agriculturists in raising the usual fine crop. Yet, Morgan county is doing a full duty in buying Alabama grown melons, a duty that should be performed by every county in state of Alabama. Alabama would thrive even more readily if every county understood its responsibilities as does this county of Morgan. Alabama products should be placed first. Naturally do we welcome products from other states, but a state tradition should be that we buy Alabama products first. Self preservation is first with us in our business lives, so it should be with the business dealings in life. If a melon just as good is grown in another state, buy the Alabama product first. If a dress just as good is made in another state, buy it in Alabama first. It is a duty that will finally result in greater prosperity of the state, better feeling among sections in the state. It is a duty that should be regarded in its fullest sense. Morgan is glad to welcome other Alabama products.

OHIO TURNS ITS BACK UPON CRIME COMMITTED RECENTLY

The state of Ohio, regardless of all its wonderful opportunities, its commercial advantages, and its many invitations to strangers to come in and live recently added laurel to its crown in offering more than $20,000 for the capture of the murderer of Don Mellett, editor crusader who took his stand against crime and did all in the power of his newspaper to bring it to an end. One has turned its back upon crime, in this particular case. Ohio has cast its cards upon the table and told the Canton underworld that every means will be employed in fighting crime. Other states will do well to follow the example set by that Northern state. Let the attitude of law-abiding people be known, they are the greatest power on earth. If criminals learn that organized society is not pleased with the method of living of people of the underworld, sooner or later they will learn to regard the wishes of society, sooner or later they will learn that they are to pay the bill for their crime, learn that they are playing a losing game. Society is a far greater force against crime than the expenditures of government appropriations or the increasing of law enforcement officers. The matter of law enforcement lies in the hands of the people more than it lies in the hands of the enforcement officer who must do his duty more from blind chance than from actual knowledge. More states should take the method of Ohioans and demand a halt on crime.

LOCAL PASTORS TO ASK RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION IN SCHOOLS

Albany-Decatur pastors have gone on record as favoring the inculcation of religious principles in the schools of these cities. Religious instruction has already been placed in the schools, but what the pastors desire is that a regular credit for Bible work will be added to the regular school study. This is not an unusual request, colleges over the nation offer regular credit for Bible study and surely it is a credit to man to study the Bible, we know too little of the Book as it is at present. We feel that the pastors will find immediate response among the school faculties and school boards, the teaching of Bible is more a necessity than learning other principles, the man or woman who knows religious teaching usually makes an excellent citizen.

KIWANIS COMPLETE A NOBLE DUTY TO FELLOWMAN

With the close of the clinic on Saturday afternoon the Kiwanis completed a noble work, but a work just begun. The work of humanity for humanity's sake is never done, if it be done by individual, group, or organization.

The Kiwanis club of Albany-Decatur and the co-operating committee from the Morgan county physicians, with the great aid of the Solomon Clinic, Louisville, and the grace of God, brought an enormous triumph for Albany-Decatur good will through the clinic. They healed many suffering unfortunates, gave medical counsel and advice to countless hundreds and taught a lesson of brotherly affection to all Morgan county and all North Alabama in the few brief days the clinic was in progress.

The act of goodness will not soon be forgotten on the part of local citizens or people in the county, the latter have learned that Albany-Decatur is here for the sole purpose of promoting the interests of Morgan county and its people, whether there be worldly good to come from such source or not. The Daily takes occasion to congratulate the workers of the Kiwanis club and the co-operating physicians for a splendid duty fulfilled, a duty which may have not belonged to them, but was nevertheless taken by them and fulfilled by them.

CULLMAN DEMOCRAT THROWS ITS FORCE TO ANDREW G. PATTERSON

Realizing that the candidate to defeat Charles S. McDowell is Andrew G. Patterson, Morgan's Own, the Cullman Democrat lends its force this week to the race of the local man for governor. In a particularly strong editorial endorsement the Democrat tells of the merits of the local man in the following:

The Democrat endorses the candidacy of Hon. A. G. Patterson for Governor of Alabama for the following reasons:

We feel that he is the strongest candidate in the race to defeat the McDowell-Rogers-Brandon political oligarchy.

We know that he has shown the greatest strength of any candidate in the race in previous political campaigns, carrying 63 out of 67 counties in 1920 and 65 of the counties in 1924, a record never surpassed by any candidate for a state office in Alabama.

Patterson will have no step-governors, prime ministers or dictators at the capitol. He is big enough to be governor himself.

Patterson is the freest man in the race from corporate or big business interests. While being fair to capital as he has always been, he will protect the public's interest as he has so capably done for the past six years as head of the public service commission.

Patterson favors retention of the 2c gasoline tax for county roads, the interest and sinking funds for a large issue, would make this retention impossible.

Mr. Patterson's record as President of the Public Service Commission shows that he had the ability, the efficiency and the honesty to conduct that office on a high plane, rigidly protecting the rights of the public, refusing to be ensnared or influenced by propaganda or pressure from corporations desiring to effect unfair charges for their services to the public and thus exploit the people. While in this office, he forced the reduction of unfair coal freight rates and thus saved the people of this county thousands of dollars. In the conduct of this office, A. G. Patterson proved himself a BIG MAN; He proved his ability in a most difficult position. He has been tested as no other candidate in the race; his record proves that there is no bigger man seeking the office of governor.

To insure the defeat of the McDowell-Brandon-Rogers oligarchy, to avert the disaster of Brandonism for four more years in Alabama, we must get squarely behind one candidate. Mr. Patterson has proved himself the biggest man and the most capable man. Let's unite with him to give Alabama four years of progressive, fair and square, safe and sane government.

That's how Cullman county feels toward the Morgan candidate. That's how every other county in North Alabama will feel if the merits of the man are considered.

North Alabama counties counted in other ranks at the present time are counted solely upon the basis of friendships. Friendship is a good quality, but it should not enter into the ranks of political races. Political races should be run upon the quality of issues, friendships likely will place men in office who are well qualified as friends, but ill qualified as governing factors.

Andrew G. Patterson is favored by The Daily not as a man of Morgan county, but as a man who has demonstrated his worth through years of service, as a man who has held and kept the public trust. Mr. Patterson's failure to keep such trust would have resulted in his loss of home town support, that however, he has not done and for that reason The Daily is unqualifiedly in back of his candidacy.

Mr. Patterson will make an able and a sane governor, he will carry the campaign promises he has made to the governor's chair. He is not the type to leave those promises outside the state capitol. As a vote-getter he will carry the majority of North Alabama counties, as a man of merit he should carry every North Alabama county, his record justifies the dependence placed in him.

William Boyce Thompson, recently returned, says France is in good shape and the low value of the franc has enabled her to pay off internal debts at less than 20 cents on the dollar, a great help.

July 14, the French celebrated the great day on which the crowd tore down the prison of the Bastille, beginning the revolution.

THE French have gone through their troubles. France won the war. France will do whatever is necessary to keep her place as a leader among the nations of the world, and she will not go into bankruptcy, or lose her head.

THE Rev. Laura B. Gaylor, of Mount Pleasant, Iowa, tells the Universalist Sunday School association that some Bible tales are out of date and horrible. That story about Elijah calling the bears to eat the child that had made fun of his baldness she could not bear.

Many things in the Bible shock you, but that is the fault of people whom the Bible describes truthfully.

THAT story about the angels that came down with important news, and the manner in which some of the natives would have received them, shocks any normal mind. But the duty of the Bible, like that of a newspaper, is to tell what happens.

WASHINGTON reports that W. G. McAdoo will not run for the Democratic nomination in 1928 "unless he is sure he can win." Washington doesn't know McAdoo. He is not a "sure thing" individual, and the best part for him would be the fight.

The Democratic party is at least entitled to a fight for the nomination if it can't make a real fight for election. If McAdoo should withdraw there is no one in sight to make a fight against Governor Al Smith of New York, who, with his friends, is fighting now, and fighting hard.

If you have a tear to spare, send it to the big American Telephone and Telegraph company, which says it isn't making enough to keep alive.

Its earnings, announced yesterday, show a net income for the first six months of 1926 of $55,917,345, or at the rate of 16.10 per cent a year.

Somebody ought to start a fund too help that little telephone industry, which, by the way, is extremely well managed and a credit to the country, apart from its big appetite for profits. And even that proves devotion to stockholders.

SOUTH AMERICAN countries want to borrow $250,000,000 here. Chile, it is said, would like $100,000,000. The United States should be glad to oblige its South American brothers in every way, and South America has good security to offer.

Uncle Sam's attitude toward South America should be: "Glad to co-operate with you, lend you money, see you prosper and mind my own business, leaving you to mind yours."

PEACE OF FUTURE HANGS UPON LAWS GOVERNING THE STATES

Writer Believes That Permanent Peace Is Dependent Upon Growth Of Law In Relation Of States

By ROBERT S. THORNBURG
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Hope of future relatively permanent peace is much more dependent upon the growth of law in relations of states than on institutions brought into existence perhaps prematurely and from which too much may be expected by enthusiasts, who do not always realize that the millennium cannot be brought about by legislative fiat or a pious resolution.

This opinion is that of Charles Pergler, international law expert, who was once Czechoslovak minister to Japan and commissioner from the former country to the United States.

"Closely connected with the problem of observance of treaties is that of enforcement of international law in the broader sense of the term," Pergler said.

"The new constitutions of Europe afford interesting evidence of the increasingly important role international law is beginning to play as a part of the legal system of civilized states and they invite comparison with the regard to recognition of international law as a part of the municipal legal order."

Old English Attitude
In England, according to Pergler, is found a very early judicial declaration to the effect that "the law of nations, in its full extent, was a part of the law of England."

"In England, therefore," he continued, "international law became a part of the judicial system by reason of a ruling of the courts."

"The first written constitution solemnly to recognize international law, is that of the United States; section eight of article one gives congress powers "to define and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and offenses against the law of nations." It will be noted that this provision gives congress no more than the power of definition and punishment, obviously the only possible course, since international law is not and cannot be the creation of any one state.

"The United States supreme court, early in its history, held that when the United States declared their independence, they were bound to receive the law of nations in its modern state of purity and refinement, and that the court is bound by the law of nations which is a part of the law of the land."

Germany, according to Pergler, has paid a better penalty for its violation of international law in commencing the Great War and "in the manner in which it conducted its operations."

Law In Germany
He added that perhaps this is the reason why the constitution of 1919 broadly declares that "the universally recognized rules of international law are accepted as integral and obligatory parts of the law of the German Reich."

"But while with the framers of the German constitution a desire for rehabilitation of their nation and perhaps a knowledge of the guilt of German governments in transgressing the rules of international law may have been the paramount motive which led to the adoption of this provision, with the smaller states the primary reason for similar provisions probably is to be found in the fact that observance of international law is perhaps the most potent safeguard for their independence and their very existence," Pergler declared.

"Equality between states being a fundamental principle of international law, it is to the interest of the weak and small states to aid to the largest possible measure in ensuring to this law, recognition and enforcement. It is therefore not surprising to find that constitutions of some of the smaller states embody a clear recognition of the international law."

Pergler held that these provisions mark a distinct and striking advance in the recognition and enforcement of international law. He said that constitutional provisions of the new European states represent progress in international morality and "make for the rule of law as distinguished from the rule of force."

U. S. Constitution Best
Commenting on the American constitution Pergler said that there "is something more than attractive in the fact that the private citizen, no matter how humble, can walk into a proper court and demand protection against encroachments upon his rights by the executive or by the legislative power."

He found defects in this regard in the Polish constitution, however, which provides that "the courts have not the right to inquire into the validity of duly promulgated statutes."

"An additional defect of the Polish constitution from the point of view of real constitutional guarantees of liberty is the wording of the several provisions," Pergler added. "Limitation of personal liberty, especially in the search of person and arrest, is admissible only in cases prescribed by law and in the manner defined by the statutes, by virtue of an order from judicial authorities. These provisions underlined, leave the legislature free to pass any sort of a law and to make any statutory definition it pleases. The only remedy is again political and not judicial."

According to Pergler some of the new European constitutions indicate that the sponsors were not wholly unaware of the advantages of judicial review of constitutionality of laws.

Courts In Austria
Thus, he said, "the Austrian fundamental law provides that 'the courts shall not have the power to examine into the validity of law duly proclaimed,' but 'if a court on the ground of its being illegal questions whether an ordinance governs a case, it shall suspend the proceedings and submit an application to the supreme constitutional court for its annulment.'"

"Czechoslovakia has established a constitutional court with exclusive jurisdiction of constitutional questions. Individual citizens can not appeal to this tribunal. It is expressly provided that only the supreme court, the electoral court, the chamber of deputies, the senate or the diet of Carpatho-Russia may move that the constitutional court pass upon the question whether a law conforms, or does not conform to the constitution."

The purpose of this fearful constitutional question is of course to prevent frivolous objections to the constitutionality of legislation.

"In Estonia, it seems, constitutional questions can be raised in a way similar to that prevailing in the United States."

IRRITATING CAUSES OF A SORE THROAT

Mouth Breathing, an Infection from the Ear or from Bad Teeth, and Rapid Travel Often Result in Periodic "Quinsy."

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

PERHAPS you never had a sore throat. Lots of people never suffer in this way. On the other hand, there are those who have the most violent "quinsy" every Spring and Fall.

Some persons appear never to be affected by cold or dust or irritating vapors. They can face any sort of exposure or circumstance without disaster. Then there are persons who appear to take cold every day. They sneeze and cough and blow their noses and suffer from sore throat all the time. They dare not venture out when there is an east wind for fear of contracting illness.

I sometimes wonder if Nature has not furnished tissues of this sort to persons who need to be careful about exposure. They suffer so much from the local symptoms I have described that they take good care of themselves in the hope of escaping trouble. By avoiding these first symptoms they escape the greater danger of bronchitis or more serious lung trouble.

When there is a tendency to throat trouble and taking cold on the slightest exposure, it is well to have a general physical examination made to see what is wrong. There may be some underlying trouble which is responsible for the symptoms.

You cannot expect to have a healthy throat if, in its neighborhood, there is some pus infection. Many a person goes through life with a running ear. It dates back to scarlet fever perhaps. No matter what its original cause, the suppuration has continued through the years. You can see that in a case like this the pus will escape through the tube which runs from the ear to the nose and will find its way down the back of the throat. An abscessed tooth or pussy gums may be the focus of infection. Neglect of the teeth and the tongue may permit growth of germs which will be transmitted to the tonsils or other tissues of the throat.

Nature never intended anybody to be a mouth breather. If the air is taken in through the mouth instead of the nose it dries the tissues of the throat and produces irritation. This prepares the way for inflammation and infection. Breathing bad air, such as is found in a poorly ventilated place of assemblage, is another possible factor in the development of a sore throat. Sleeping in a stuffy, dusty bedroom is an evil practice.

Every invention brings with it evils as well as blessings. Rapid travel in the automobile against the air and dust must produce some irritation of the nose and throat. Travel in express trains and indeed all the modern modes of travel are more or less irritating to the breathing apparatus.

There is another cause of throat

Poultry Flocks Increase Values

Interesting figures to Morgan county farmers regarding poultry profits were given today in the Alabama Farm Bureau News. The report was compiled by extension experts at Auburn and contains values of 128 demonstration flocks for the month of May. The figures showed that 19,172 birds over Alabama brought a return of 40 cents above cost per hen. March showed 40 cents per hen, while April figures were given as 45.2 cents.

Brick cannot burn! Brick is immune to destruction by all the elements, and even to time itself.

Brick reduces insurance rates. Brick makes a more beautiful home. Brick never needs replacing. Brick saves painting and repainting costs. Brick homes are cooler in summer and require less fuel to keep them warm in winter. Because of all this, the home of brick—the fire-safe home—costs less and is worth more.

Albany-Decatur are brick manufacturing cities. They should be cities of brick homes. No freight to pay.

Either of the undersigned brick manufacturers will gladly aid you in planning your home of brick. Consult them.

Answers to Health Queries

Ruth R. Q.—Will peroxide have a tendency to make supercilious hair less noticeable?

A.—Peroxide will bleach the hair and thus make it less noticeable.

I. V. S. Q.—What should a girl weigh who is twenty-two years of age and five feet eight inches tall?

2.—Are corn bread and buttermilk fat-producing foods?

A.—For her age and height she should weigh about 142 pounds.

2.—Corn bread is not as fattening as it is nutritious. Ordinary buttermilk that is sold in drug stores is fattening. Real country buttermilk that has had the cream removed is not.

E. J. B. L. Q.—What should a woman of forty-five, five feet five inches tall, weigh? If overweight—I weigh 170 pounds—what should I do to reduce?

A.—You should weigh about 145 pounds. A restricted diet in regard to sweets and starches, plenty of outdoor exercise, etc., should all help you to reduce. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. Copyright, 1926, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Unhindered by flowing robes, straight limbed and clear eyed as any athletic boy, they are the embodiment of the charm and grace that makes the twentieth century girl the ideal type of the ages.

Helpful Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens, considered good-looking. I make friends with boys easily enough, but can't keep them interested in me. They come to see me four or five times and then don't ask to come any more.

Why is this?

BABY BLUE EYES. Bility you have met only young men who interest you a little and who do not share your tastes. That is why these friendships have never developed.

You ought to join a club of some sort—literary, social or athletic, where you will meet young men who like to do the things you do. Then you will find that they are never bored with them and that they will want to see you frequently. These are the only friendships worth while, and the only ones which last.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens. I am in love with a young man my age, but he does not love me.

Please tell me how to win his love.

FOUR EYES. Of course you realize that love cannot be forced, my dear. Be satisfied with the friendship that this young man offers you and try not to think of love. However, when you are with him be as sweet, natural and charming as you can possibly be. In this way you can interest him in you, and possibly the interest may ripen into love.

VIENNA WOMEN STUDENTS DECREASING IN NUMBERS

By International News Service

VIENNA.—The number of women students in Vienna has dropped almost twenty percent in the last six months. An investigation into the cause by the Socialistic women's organizations of that city has revealed the fact that untrained women can earn almost as much as trained women, with few exceptions, and school is hardly worth the time and money to girls.

The women's organizations have decided such a condition of affairs is decidedly detrimental to women's new and exalted place in Australia society and is organizing a fund to send a thousand girls to training college and pay them a weekly sum for living expenses.

CREEK INDIANS MEET FOR TRIBAL PARLEY

By International News Service

OKMULGEE, Okla.—The Creek Indian nation, in a national council meeting in the house of Kings, will take into its own hands the alleged systematic looting of the estates of uneducated members of the tribe.

It is the first time in years that the council, the legislative body of the Creek nation, has met to consider a matter of importance to the entire nation.

The call to council, issued by Samuel J. Haynes, president of the house of Kings reads:

"The purpose of this meeting is to give consideration to the apparent systematic organization of groups throughout eastern Oklahoma having as their object the overreaching of the uneducated and inexperienced class of the Creek people.

"It is time that the Indian and the honest citizen began a counter offensive."

This unexpected action of the tribe follows the government investigation which has begun with the case of Katie Fixico Daniels, full blood Creek, whose various attorneys are now in hot litigation over the alleged pilaging of her million dollar oil estates through trumped guardianships.

Postmark propaganda is gradually growing in France. The resources of art are now harnessed to literature and postage stamps are now obliterated by a small design and the advice, "Let us cultivate hygiene and the care of infants in order to protect the health and lives of our children."

"Put the stamp on the right corner and post your letters as soon as they are ready," is the maximum that has been used for many years and which is perhaps much easier to read and follow than the injunction to cultivate hygiene.

Suddenly his face lights up and he addresses a young Parisienne approaching his cab.

"Oh Pardon, Mademoiselle, but could you loan me for just one minute one of your hairpins?"

And to enlighten the very much surprised maiden, he added:

"You see my pipe is clogged up and I've been waiting an hour for some one to come by with a hairpin in her head. Merci beaucoup."

Gossip of Staff Correspondents at World Centers of Population

PARIS—After the hat and the shirt, Napoleon's handkerchief which was used during his exile at St. Helena, has recently been sold for nine hundred and fifty francs, a foolish sum according to the French press.

"Even at the price of ordinary handkerchiefs today," says "D" in "L'Ouvre," "this is an exaggeration. On the leather lining of the lining of the little three-ornered hat recently sold, there were traces of the sweat of the little Emperor. But the handkerchief had certainly been washed a dozen times since the last cold in the head of Napoleon at St. Helena and it takes a good deal of imagination to attach such a price to a little ragged bit of linen.

"Then too, how does one really know it did belong to the General? A handkerchief is like a book, borrowed and never returned. Who knows but that some Marshal had loaned it to Napoleon for the day?"

Here It Is!

The Sensation of the Day In Proprietary Medicine

Only a few years ago it was being made by the originator in his home kitchen, now manufactured in one of the largest laboratories in the United States, and being sold in car load lots from the Lakes to the Gulf at the rate of over a million bottles yearly.

Hundreds have testified that they suffered for years with constipation, indigestion, gas on stomach, coated tongue, no appetite, no vitality, and a general run-down condition, but by the aid of this marvelous cleanser, eliminating the poisonous waste matter from the system through its free action on the bowels, they now owe their good health to same and once more enjoy hearty meals without any ill effect and no longer suffer with the most common ailment of the day—constipation.

This medicine is out-selling any other preparation on the market where it is known. More than a million bottles sold during past year under absolute guarantee to give beneficial results—and less than a dozen bottles returned—a record probably never before established by any other medicine. Every family needs this Herbal Extract preparation called Herb Juice, as every family necessarily takes a laxative, and this preparation is said to be Nature's most effective tonic laxative and system purifier. Can be given to children same as adults. Mild, pleasant, yet very effective. Get the original and genuine as shown above and we guarantee beneficial results. Now sold by leading druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere.

BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD

BY EDWARD CLARK

Copyrighted by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD" with Louise Dresser is a Warner picture of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Betty Terwilliger and Hal Chut-ter are movie aspirants in Hollywood. Hal is seriously hurt; Betty fights to support both. McIntosh, noted screen villain, gives her a part in his picture. Virginia Perry, ruthless star, now a derelict, discovers that she is Betty's mother, but doesn't reveal it for fear of ruining the girl's career. Strangely moved by Virginia's coaching, Betty makes a great hit. Marshall, supposed to be responsible for many of the "broken hearts of Hollywood," invites Betty to a hotel casin6 to talk over a contract.

With his ill-purpose still screened from Betty's trustful eyes by the very skill of the chase that had given tradition to his reputation as a breaker of hearts, he smiled at her across a sumptuous dinner. His reputation would have kept a less set of eyes than Marshall's in round figures and ambitious clauses and made notes and wavy papers.
But Betty, to his chagrin, refused to be worked into an enthusiastic mood.

"What's the matter?" he demanded. "You look and act as though you were attending an inquest instead of sitting in at the pleasant task of drawing up a five

Betty tried to cry out, but the pine had thickened her tongue.

rear contract at an ascending scale that would eventually make Gloria Ewanston's pay envelope look like a day laborer's.

"I had thought," replied Betty, with a faraway look, "that when the time came for me to sign a contract my cup of happiness would be filled to overflowing. But now I find that my mouth is full of dead ashes!"

"In heaven's name, you silly child
—why?"

"Because Hal told me this evening that as soon as he is strong enough to stand the trip he is going home."

"Quitting?" sarcastically.

"No—just recognizing, as he says, that you can't fit square pegs into round holes; that, like ninety-five per cent of the untold thousands trying to get into the movies, he has no right by talent or training to do so."

"But you're fitted in!"

"I'm not so sure. What have I done on my own account to prove that I have screen talent, that I am not robbing some more gifted girl of a chance? I'm honest enough to see through the glitter and know that I've been pushed along by circumstances, by friends like McIntosh and you."

"But the way you put that scene over this afternoon?"

Betty shook her head in a puzzled manner. "I didn't do that.
Mrs. Perry made me do it. She was acting through me. I can hardly remember a thing—it was as though I were hypnotized."

Marshall laughed dryly. "Then more than a couple of hard-boiled movie producers, who are going to give you a contract at any figure we set! Don't be a goose, child.
Get those foolish thoughts out of your head. You're talented and and—beautiful!"

He was leaning across the table now and softly punctuating his words by light taps of his fingers upon her gleaming bare arms—taps that soon became caressing strokes.
Betty noticed and pulled away.
Marshall instantly went back to his second line; it was not yet the zero hour for the final attack!

As for Betty, she fell to brooding over the details of her scene earlier

In the evening with Hal. When she told him the day's wonders and, most marvelous of all, that she was to get a star contract, Hal had congratulated her with a smile that was not a smile, a rejoicing that was not joyous. After a while he had told her what was in his mind; that as long as she had needed help it was his intention to stay and fight for and with her and shield her, but now that she was on the threshold of an assured career there was no longer a possibility that she might need him. Small help that he—a nobody—could ever be to her again! He would go home to take over the paternal farm. "I'd rather be a big farmer," he had paraphrased, "in a little valley than a little actor on a big screen!"

"But, Hal," Betty had whispered brokenly, "you aren't thinking of me?"

"I'll always think of you, Betty, my darling," he said simply. "And when I see you again, I'll come for you. Only I'm afraid you'll be so rich and famous that you won't have any use for me!"

Betty had cried upon his shoulder then and murmured vows that she would never turn from him—had clung to him with prayers that he would send for her soon. After a while she had left him, aimless and wistful upon the bed, to keep her appointment with Marshall.

Now she shook the dreary dare from her eyes and came back to the reality of her presence here alone with Marshall in an opulently draped room heavy with the sweetness of flowers and the headiness of poured wine.

"And that," she said wily, "is why I am not interested in these!"
She flicked the contract papers from her in distaste.

Marshall had been studying her thoughtfully through narrow eyes.
"Poor child," he said, with the air of a field marshal disposing his troops for the next encounter,
"you've had a lot to contend with.
And now this—desertion!"

Betty started to flare up in indignant denial that Hal was deserting her, but Marshall silenced her with a deprecating smile. "Don't take me literally, Miss Terwilliger. I'm speaking in generalities. But they sometimes are too damning by far.
God knows, you look a bit tired and depressed. Here, have a sip of this; it will brace you."

Betty spurned the proffered cocktail.

Marshall was the picture of kind-liness rebuffed, so that Betty felt sorry for her abruptness and became easy prey for his next attack. "There isn't a bit of harm to it—just innocuous wine. Good Lord, you know I wouldn't ask you to take anything that would harm you, especially at this moment when you've need of a clear, refreshed mind to consider your problems—Hal, for instance, and these."

Betty drank as if under the tutelage of a parent. "Are you sure," she asked thickly a minute later,
"that it's safe stuff, that there's no harm in it? Seems to go to my head. Feel kind of dizzy!"

"Perfectly sure!" lied Marshall, who felt swelling in his breast pocket the half-filled paper from which he had sifted enough to make sure that the drink was all that he had said it was not.

She took another one under the pressure of his insistence. "Why are you looking that doom—Mr.— Marshall? I think I want to get out of here. I feel funny."

Now he was on his knees beside her offering a brimming goblet to her quivering lips, smiling reassuringly. He told her how he had flamed his blood to the point where he could no longer control himself.
Nor did he feel now that he had to —now!

"You beautiful, radiant creature!"
The words fanned against her face like flames, to which his hands stroked a hot accompaniment on her smooth arms.

Betty tried to cry out, but the wine had thickened her tongue into lead. She tried to struggle away, but fell into his arms instead. He crushed her fiercely. In vain she beat upon his burning face, kicked, scratched, gasped. His lips were kissing the honey out of the petalled hollows of her shoulders, from which he had torn away the flaky frock.

Betty was dimly conscious of a hard, furious third voice snapping on the ceiling air of the room;
then everything went black.

But to Marshall the new voice injected into the situation had not been hazy, but ominously close to his ear and deadly cold with fury.
Painting with rage over the thwarted fulfillment of his desires, he turned to look full into the muzzle of a revolver held in Virginia Perry's firm hand. Hurriedly, then, Marshall disengaged himself from the dead weight of the unconscious Betty, easing her into a chair. Breathing hard, he faced Virginia again:

"How the hell did you get in here and what do you want?"
(To be concluded.)

HARTSELLE NEWS

HARTSELLE ICE COMPANY BEGINS OPERATIONS

The Hartsville Ice Company pulled their first batch of ice from the new plant Monday of this week. Last Saturday the local plant which had operated near the Tire Service station for the past two years moved to the new plant on Main street, and patrons were served from that point.

The plant is of twenty tons capacity and is managed by E. H. Sharpley, who has been ice dealer here for the past several years.

METHODIST REVIVAL BEGINS

A revival, scheduled to run for the next two weeks was begun Sunday at the First Methodist church. Rev. Smith of Montgomery is to conduct the services, with Rev. Lampkin of Waterloo, Ala., as choir leader.

A telegram received from Rev. Smith early Sunday morning announced that he could not possibly arrive until Monday. Rev. J. B. Rice occupied the pulpit at the morning hour in his absence.

COLD NIGHTS HURTS COTTON

Many complaints are being heard of damage to the cotton plant on account of the cold nights of the past week, and increased activity of cotton pests. A pair of bed covers were comfortable practically every night last week.

The hopper flea is reported to be doing some damage to cotton, tho this is not general.

The week par/d without rain, and now a good rain would be welcomed. Much corn is silking, and moisture will be necessary to carry it through this important stage.

IRISH POTATO SHIPMENTS BEING MADE

Several shipments of fine Irish potatoes have been made from this point to the larger markets of the country, many having a surplus and are disposing of them. The continued rains have been very favorable for this important crop in this section, and above a normal acreage was planted.

Many planters of this section are laying by their crop, the next ten days will see practically all through with their work in the crops of this season.

Local watermelons will soon be on this market according to raisers in this section. The vines are promising now, and there should be a fine lot of melons marketed at this point, as there is annually.

Rev. E. N. Anthony will leave soon for Georgia, near his former home to conduct a series of revival services. The services of Rev. Anthony are in demand practically all the time.

Vann Patillo after a long siege of illness, continues to improve very slowly. Recuperation is slow but seems to be positive.

Messrs Chester I. Lee and Dunbar Boger returned Saturday from a few days fishing trip to Bailey Springs. They report luck, and a beautiful place to camp.

The cedar mill of L. G. Guley after a shut down for the past four weeks accumulating a stock of cedar logs, resumed sawing last Friday.

Mr. Cook of Garden City is the new L. and N. section foreman at this point, taking the place of J. B. McGlothlen who moved with his family recently to the Birmingham district.

Several Hartsville citizens made the trip to Warrior last week and joined others at the speaking of Hon. A. G. Patterson, candidate for governor, who spoke there and at other points in Jefferson county last week. These from this point made the trip to Birmingham and Woodlawn spending the day and night.

A large crowd attended the picnic at Eva last Saturday, several from Hartsville making the trip and enjoying the day with the people of that section. A visitor reported the woods were full of candidates on that occasion.

Many people are trying to lift a mortgage while riding around in it.

It was his first call, but he was a bold, dashing blade, and as soon as they got comfortably settled in the parlor he said:

"How about a kiss?"
"All right," said the girl, as she snuggled into his arms; "but only one kiss, because father's awfully strict, and you'll have to go at 11 sharp."

Boys don't usually care about keeping "That Schoolgirl Complexion." That's the reason they brush the powder off their coats as soon as they get home.

Many a man doesn't realize he's a landlubber until he tries to sail the sea of matrimony.

One Alabama woman we know goes to the theater solely for the sake of getting new dress ideas. She has just sold her opera glasses and bought a microscope.

While the diagnosis of the patient, who had eaten rather generously, was proceeding, the sick man said, "Doctor, do you think the trouble is in the appendix?"

"Oh, no," said the doctor, "not at all. The trouble is with your table of contents."

Owner Campaigns, Peaches Stolen

Judge Thomas W. Wert, candidate for attorney general, who is a "dirt farmer," as well as attorney, has found an item added to the cost of his campaign had calculated upon.

At Judge Wert's country home, near here, he has a fine lot of peach trees, which this year gave promise of yielding him a nice profit. Last week while he was away campaigning, however, miscreants visited the orchard and picked all of the more luscious fruit.

DELANEY DEFEATS BERLENBACH FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

JIM CROWLEY

BERLENBACH

DELANEY

This picture was taken in the 12th round of the Jack Delaney-Berlenbach fight in New York—the round in which Delaney put in some of his heaviest blows that won the light heavyweight championship of the world for him. Berlenbach is shown hitting at Delaney's chin but he was too weakened to be dangerous. Delaney fought back, winning the round by the widest margin up to that time.

Crowder Flings a Loss In His Last Southern Tilt; Birds Lose To Crax

Alvin Crowder, that czar of Southern league flinging, tossed his last Southern league game yesterday for the Barons, disastrously.

The General is now speeding for the Senatorial dugouts up in Washington. He is joining the Congressional ranks to bolster the fast failing Senatorial hurling staff. Curley Ogden and Palmero around the paths considerably in the lead of the Barons. The Barons grabbed but five blows off Young Horace Lisenbee.

The Pels lost too, they went down before the Crackers by a 7-1 verdict. Ray Francis was not at all generous in the pinches and though the Pels outit the Atlanta folks it really was a worthless exhibition so far as New Orleans was concerned.

Things are looking better for a Pirate or a Card victory in the National league affairs. Cincy dropped a hurlers duel to Brooklyn yesterday and reduced a league lead to one full game. The Pirates were idle at the time, but the Cards were thundering along to get nearer the Pirates. The Cards developed a punch against the Phillies that netted a 9-7 win.

Cincy stood firmly with Pete Donohue, but McGraw, Dodger

SHEIK STUFF!

Stop 85% of This!

Eighty-five per cent of all fires result from defective or unclean chimneys and flues.

Help stop this great loss of property and life. Keep the chimneys and flues in your homes, business and public buildings clean and in good condition.

YOU WILL SOON BE VISITED BY FIRE PREVENTION EXPERTS

Consult with them. Let them inspect your home and remove any fire hazards. Their suggestions cost you nothing and may save you much.

The Safety First Association, an organization for the prevention of fire, has a crew of fire prevention experts in Albany-Decatur. Their work begins this week, simultaneously with Fire Prevention Week proclaimed by Mayors Carswell and Nelson.

Homes, public buildings and store buildings will be inspected as rapidly as is consistent with thoroughness. Suggestions will be made for the removal of any fire hazards found existing. Special attention will be given to the condition of chimneys and flues, as fire records of the nation show these to cause 85 per cent of all fires.

The work of the Safety First Association is endorsed by the Fire Chiefs, Mayors and Fire Insurance Men of Albany-Decatur.

A representative of this association will visit you in the near future. Let him co-operation with you. He will render you a valuable service. Should you wish to communicate with the association before a representative visits you, phone, write or call

Cotton Riddle Is Blanked By 9-0

"Cotton" Riddle, ancient scintillant in North Alabama amateur circles, had a little hard luck against Hartselle recently, losing 9-0, in the second game of the Haleyville series. Hartselle dropped the first tilt 5-3. Allison did the hurling for Hartselle in the last game and handled the job in big league fashion, while Hartselle hitters took to Riddle's offerings with apparent ease.

Three Games Are Planned For Week

A three game series between Hartselle Independents and Boyles Ala., is scheduled this week at the high school lot at Hartselle. The first game will be played Tuesday afternoon. Battery announcements have not been made, but prediction that Hartselle will get the breaks in the series is freely made by homelings. Hartselle having improved with age. The team was slow in getting organized, but with a little outside talent it seems that the team is about ready to make a bid for North Alabama amateur honors.

Falkville Likely To Appear Here

Arrangements are underway to have Falkville Independents to play here Thursday afternoon at Malone Park, in connection with the B. Y. P. U. celebration. In which all Morgan County Baptists are interested. The convention is an outdoor affair being held at Malone park and the baseball game is intended to wind up the day. The Albany-Decatur team will be combined for the tilt with the probability that Lowery will be the hurling choice from a local standpoint. Lowery is some little hurler himself and if given proper support will likely turn in a win over the Falkville folks.
